

Working For A Living in San Bernardino County's Past

Michele Nielsen is the curator of history and archivist at the San Bernardino County Museum located in Redlands. She enjoys sharing our county and regional history with others through the use of artifacts and photographs in the museum's collection. Our past, present and future are interconnected, and tangible objects used by those who have gone before us are a great way to make our personal connection. Ms. Nielsen received her education at the University of Redlands, holds a certificate from the Western Archives Institute, and is pursuing a Master's degree.

She will present a program entitled: "Working for a Living in San Bernardino County's Past"- featuring intriguing and insightful photographs from the museum's permanent collections. Come and find out more about the world of work, circa 1900.
